FOREWORD

The Micro, Small and Medium Enterprises (MSME) sector has been recognized as an engine of growth all over the world. The major advantage of this sector in India is its employment potential at low capital cost. The labour employment in MSME sector is much higher than that of the large enterprises. The MSMEs constitute over 90% of total enterprises in most of the countries with the highest rate of employment growth and a major share of industrial production and exports. In India, MSMEs play a pivotal role in the overall growth of economy. With its agility and dynamism, the sector has shown admirable innovativeness and adaptability to survive in the recent economic recession.

Haryana has taken lead in terms of planned industrial and urban growth compared to neighbouring States, which has resulted in development of new industrial estates including product specific clusters close to the National Capital. The New Industrial Policy launched in August, 2015 of Haryana will boost the growth of MSMEs in the State and open new avenues for cluster development as well. It is hoped that the entrepreneurs will find this document useful for taking investment decisions, besides proving immensely helpful information to various agencies engaged in the promotion and development of MSMEs in the state.

I appreciate the efforts put in by Shri M K Verma, Assistant Director(IMT) in preparation of this document. I am also thankful to various government departments, industrial associations and other agencies for giving information and data for compiling this document. Some data has also been obtained from the websites of concerned departments.

1. General Characteristics of the District:

The district derives its name from its headquarters' town Rohtak which is said to be a correction of Rohtashgarh, a name still applied to the ruined sites (also called khokhrakot) of two older sites, one lying immediately north of the present town and other about 5 Kms. towards the east. Traditionally, it is named after Raja Rohtash in whose days city is said to have been built. It is also claimed that the town derives its name from the Roherra (Tacoma undulate) tree called Rohitaka in Sanskrit. It is said that before the town came into existence, it was the site of a forest of Rohitaka trees and hence its name became Rohtak. Another version connects Rohtak with Rohitaka, which is mentioned in Mahabharata in connection with campaign of Nakula, the Pandva warrior. History of the district as an Administrative unit.

The areas of Rohtak district underwent many changes, extending over hundreds of years before the administrative unit emerged in its present form. Under the Mughal Emperor Akbar, when his Minister Todar Mal divided North India into administrative circles, the areas of Rohtak (as a part of Suba of Delhi) fell within the Sarkars of Delhi and Hisar firuqa. Lying close to the imperial city of Delhi, the tract which now comprises the Rohtak district, was often granted in military Jagir by the Sultan and Mughal emperors to the Nobles of the court. For this reason Rajput, Brahman, Afgan, & Baluch chiefs have at different times enjoyed its revenues. On the death of Bahadur-Shah-I (1707-12), the successor of Aurangzeb, the Mughal empire began to decline rapidly. The areas of Rohtak frequently experienced a change of masters. The claims of Imperials were contested sometimes by the Rajputs, Jats & Sikhs and often by the Marathas. George Thomas, the protage of a Maratha leader, Appa Kandirao, established his authority at Hansi and extended it to Meham and Rohtak for a number of years, until Sindhia and various other regional forces combined to drive him away. Sindhia was, however, not destined to hold for long his conquests to the west of the Yamuna. By the treaty of Surjit Arjungaon, signed on Dec. 30, 1803, the Rohtak area along with the other possessions of Sindhia situated to the west of Yamuna passed to the British and came under the administration of the North-west provinces.

The British had no intention at that time to hold large territories beyond the Yamuna. Accordingly, a number of Chiefs and leaders who had done good military service against the Marathas or had at least remained neutral, were settled in this tract to form a barrier of independent outposts between the British border and the Cis-Sutlej Sikh estates as well as the trans-sutlej rising kingdom of Ranjit Singh. Accordingly, the Jhajjar territory was given to Nawab Nijabat Ali Khan and the Baluch possessions at B. Garh to his brother, Nawab Ismail Khan. Gohana & Kharkhoda-Mandothi tehsils were given to Raja Bagh Singh of Jind & Bhai Lal Singh of Kaithal as life jagirs. The villages Lohari, Patudha and Kheri Sultan in the south east corner of Jhajjar tehsil were given as a separate Jagir to Mohamad Khan son & Nawab Nijabat Ali Khan. The estates of Hassnagarh, Kirhauri, Pyladgarh (Pehlampur) and Khurampur in Sampla area were also granted to him for life. Rohtak, Beri and Meham tehsils of the present distt. were given to the Nawab of Dujana who resigned the major portion of the gift in A.D. 1809 because it was beyond his power to manage it.

The formation of present Rohtak district began when the gift was abandoned by the Dujana Chief. The Gohana and Kharkhoda-Mandothi estates lapsed to the British Govt. after the death of Bhai Lal Singh in A.D.1818 and Bhagh Singh in 1820. When the Hissar district was created in the latter year, the Beri and Meham-Bhiwani tehsils were included in Hisar and the other portions of the present northern tehsils in Panipat. In 1824 the Rohtak distt. was formed as a separate unit consisting of Gohana, Kharkhoda-Mandothi, Rohtak, Beri and Meham -Bhiwani tehsils. The Bahadurgarh territory formed its eastern and Jhajjar its southern boundary. Until A.D.1832, the whole area, including Rohtak, was under the resident of Delhi, but when in that year it was brought under the same regulations as the rest of North Indian, the resident became commissioner. The Distt. was abolished in A.D. 1841 Gohana going to Panipat and rest of tehsil to Delhi but in the very next year it was created again. Two Distt. of Rohtak and Jhajjar together with rest of Delhi and Hisar divisions were detached from North-western provinces after 1857 and passed to the Punjab by the Govt. of India on 13th April, 1858. The Rohtak distt. remained a part of the Hissar division until 1884.

After its transfer to the Punjab, the Rohtak Distt. experienced several changes before assuming its present form. Bahadurgarh estate was added to the Sampla tehsil, five detached villages to the east, going to Delhi. Jhajjar including some areas of Narnaul, Kanaudh and Dahari was at first created as a new distt. but was abolished shortly afterwards in 1860, when large parts of it were assigned to the phulkian chief as a reward for their loyal services. While the Jhajjar tehsil itself was added to Rohtak several Badali villages were transferred either to Delhi or Gurgaon and two detached Jhajjar estates were given to the Raja of Jind. In the following year, The Meham tehsil was abolished and after making necessary territorial adjustments in favour of Hisar and Delhi, the rest of the area was added to Rohtak tehsil. All these changes were completed by 1st July, 1861.

On the abolition of Hisar Division in 1884, the Rohtak Distt. was transferred to Delhi division. It consisted of four tehsils-Rohtak, Gohana, Jhajjar & Sampla, But in April, 1910, Sampla tehsil was abolished for reasons of administrative economy and its area was divided between the Rohtak and Jhajjar tehsils which had remained attached to the Delhi distt. since the year 1861 and was added to the Rohtak distt. in Sept, 1912, on the separation of Delhi Territory from the Punjab. The distt. was then attached to Ambala division. In 1948, Dujana state was merged in Jhajjar tehsil and a new sub-tehsil of Nahar was created.

Thus, Rohtak distt. was given a shape with four Tehsils i.e. Rohtak, Sonipat, Jhajjar & Gohana with Nahar & Meham as sub-tehsil of Jhajjar and Gohana tehsils respectively. Tehsil of B.Garh was created in 1973 from Jhajjar tehsil. In 1973 Meham sub-tehsil was upgraded as tehsil. Sonipat tehsil was created by bifurcating Rohtak distt, and Gohana and Sonipat tehsils were allotted to Sonipat district. One more tehsil, Kosli was created out of Jhajjar tehsil and Nahar sub-tehsil was abolished and the bifurcated Rohtak distt., comprised of five tehsils, namely Rohtak, Bahadurgarh, Jhajjar, Meham and Kosli and one sub-tehsil M.hail was also created. In Nov., 1989 reorganisation of distt. took place and Gohana tehsil was again attached with Rohtak distt. Of Rewari. Three sub-tehsils of Badli, M.hail and Beri were created again in July, '92, Gohana tehsil was again transferred to Sonipat distt. and Badli sub-tehsil was abolished later on.

In July, '97, Jhajjar district was created after bifurcating Rohtak district into Rohtak and Jhajjar districts and the present Rohtak District consists of Rohtak and Meham Tehsils, while Jhajjar & B.Garh tehsils are in Jhajjar Distt.

1.1 Location & Geographical Area.

The district lies in the south east of Haryana state. It is bound by Jind and Sonipat districts on the north, Jhajjar district on the south, Jhajjar and Sonipat district on the east and Hisar and Bhiwani districts on the west side.

Area & Population

The district is having an area of 1668.47 square Kms. Population of the district as per 2011 census is 1058683. The density of population is 466 per sq.Kilometer. There are 146 villages and 151 Panchayats on the district. The rural population is 613864 and urban population is 444819. As per 2011 census, rural population constitutes 57.98% of the total population of the district.

The economy of the district is primarily agriculture i.e. agrarian economy. About 51.89% of the total workers are engaged in agriculture and allied activities, 7.68% in cottage & household industries and the rest are engaged in other activities.

Out of total geographical area of the district, 83% is under cultivation. The main crops are wheat, gram, sugarcane & bajra. There is no perennial river in the district. Underground water level is relatively high. The district is faced with the problem of brackish water and water logging in many parts of the district. The sub soil water depth varies from 4 to 40 feet.

The district lies in the south east of Haryana state. It is bound by Jind and Sonapat districts on the north, Jhajjar district on the south, Jhajjar and Sonapat district on the east and Hisar and Bhiwani districts on the west side.

1.4 FOREST

Haryana is primarily an agriculture state with almost 80% of its land under cultivation. The geographical area of the state is 44212 sq. km which is 1.3% of India's geographical area. It is not bestowed with bounty of natural forests and only 3.52% of its geographical area is under notified forests. The rest extends as tree cover in village common lands, community lands, institutional lands and agricultural farms.

Forestry activities in the state are dispersed over rugged Shivalik Hills in north, Aravalli hills in south, sand dunes in west and wastelands, saline-alkaline lands and waterlogged sites in the central part of the state.

To promote sustainable development of forest resources in the state, Haryana government has framed its own forest policy in 2006. The policy has fixed the goal of achieving 10% forest and tree cover by 2010 and eventually 20% in the state. This goal can be achieved by agro forestry practices. We are using genetically superior seedlings under agro-forestry on farm lands to increase productivity. In fact agro forestry should become a national mandate and a people's movement, as it is most economical, sustainable and stable alternative for ensuring ecological security of the country. Annually the forest department is distributing about 25 million seedlings to the farmers free of cost. Agro forestry plantations raised by the Forest Department are rated as one of the best in the country. It has been adopted by farmers as an income generation practice and used as a model of rural development, worthy of emulation in rest of the country. This practice can meet the goal of achieving one third of the geographical area of country under tree cover as envisaged in the national forest policy. The success of agro-forestry in Haryana enabled a forest deficit state to become the most productive state in terms of plywood and veneer. Annually 2.5 million cubic meters of wood that is mostly farm-grown, is converted into plywood and other form of composite wood within the State of Haryana. Today Yamuna Nagar has become the national centre of plywood and veneer industry. The policy of not putting unnecessary restrictions on felling of trees from private land and their subsequent transit has enabled an environment which has led a large number of farmers to grow trees. The endeavor has been to enable an environment that agro-forestry and wood-based industries flourish and grow simultaneously.
