Brief Industrial Profile of Jashpurnagar District

1. General Characteristics of the District

Jashpurnagar was a princely State before independence. The history of the region is quite vague. Local here say evidences suggest that there was a Dom dynasty ruling the area by the middle of 18th century. The last Dom ruler Raibhan was defeated and killed by the founder of the present Jashpur State Sujan Rai. It is said that Banswada, a smaller State in old Rajputana Province, was the native place of Sujan Rai's ancestors. They established their rule and Kingdom in Sonpur. Sujan Rai, being the eldest son of the Suryavanshi King, was on a hunting expedition in deep forest, his father (King) died. In view of the tradition and requirement of the occasion his younger brother was coronate, as the Throne of King could not be kept unoccupied, even for a while. On return from hunting expedition, Sujan Rai was offered and requested to take over the charge of the Throne. But he preferred to be a Sangasi and took to the forest. Wandering about he reached Khudia, the capital camp of the Dom kingdom. There he found that the subjects were unhappy and dissatisfied with the Dom Raja Raibhan and were on the verge of revolt. Sujan Rai led the popular uprising, defeated the Dom Raja in a battle. Now, Sujan Rai became the King and a new State 'Jashpur' was founded by him. Today's Jashpur Royal family belongs to that dynasty.

In earlier years, the Jashpur king accepted the paramountcy of Bhonsle's of Nagpur and continued offering 21 buffalos as a mark of respect and obedience to the paramount. During Mudhaji Bhonsle's regime, in 1818, Jashpur State was brought under Sarguja State for the purpose of efficient administration. However, till 1950, Jashpur was included as a princely State among Chhotanagpur States, administered by the Bengal Government. This arrangement continued till 1947-48. Jashpur remained a part of Chhotanagpur commissionerary from 1948 to October 10, 1956. On November 1, 1956 when Madhya Pradesh was organized as a new State under union of India, Jashpur became a part of it. Till May 25, 1998 this region remained a part of Raigarh District. Owing to extensive area of several districts in Madhya Pradesh, a district reorganization commission, headed by Justice G.K. Dubey, was constituted by the then Chief Minister Mr. Arjun Singh in 1982. The commission submitted its report in 1989. In 1992, the Chief Minister of M.P. Mr. Sundarlal Patwa declared the constitution of 16 new districts in the State, Jashpur being one of them. On account of judicial interests they said declaration could not be executed at that time. Bowing to the people's aspirations, Mr. Digvijay Singh, the Chief Minister of M.P., declared the creation of 16 districts on May 22, 1998. In a public ceremony the Minister-in-Charge of the district Mr. Chanesh Ram Rathia formally announced the creation of Jashpur District. On May 25, 1998 Mr. Ramanand Shukla took over the charge of collector of this newly constituted district. On organization of Chhattisgarh as a new State, Jashpurnagar is a part of this province.

1.1 Location & Geographical Area.

Jashpur district is divided in two parts as per the geographical point of views. The hilly belt, the northern part, running from Loroghat kastura, Narayanpur, Bagicha up to the Surguja district. This belt having forest area. It has a reserve forest also. It covers the Sanna, Bagicha and Narayanpur. This area is called upper

Ghat. Upper ghat is climbed through Loroghat. Loroghat is about 4 KM in length and there are three turnings of very dangerous and the remaining southern part is called nichghat. In jashpur Raigarh road, there are two more ghats, Jhandabhat before Kansabel and Belaghat after Kansabel both are of climbing.

1.2 Topography

The North South length of this district is about 150 Kms, and its east-west breadth is about 85 Kms. Its total area is 6,205 Sq.Km. It lies in the Northern corner of Chhattisgarh state adjoining the border of Bihar, Jharkhand & Orissa in the eastern side. It is between 22 deg 17min and 23 dig 15min North latitude and 83dig 30min and 84 dig 24min East latitude. The upper ghat is an extension plateau covering 1384 sq.Kms. Which is about 1200 meters above sea level and is covered with the dense forest. The elevated plateau called "Pat" Nichghat is plane in general, but It also having many big mountains, Kunkuri is the hottest region in Nichghat during summer and Pandrapat is the coldest region in upper ghat in winter.

1.3 Availability of Minerals.

Jashpurnagar district has a wide variety of minerals found in igneous, sedimentary and metamorphic terrains. A few of them form large economic deposits while a number of other minerals are reported only as occurrences.
