Brief Industrial Profile of Lalitpur District

1. General Characteristics of the District

Lalitpur District is one of the districts of Uttar Pradesh state of India. Lalitpur District is a part of Jhansi Division. Lalitpur is the main town and administrative headquarters. The geographical area of the district is 5039 Sq. Kms. and has a population of 1218002 as per the census 2011. Lalitpur District was formerly part of the state of Chanderi, founded in the 17th century by a Bundela Rajput who was descended from Rudra Pratap of Orchha. Chanderi, along with most of Bundelkhand, came under Maratha hegemony in the 18th century. Daulat Rao Sindhia of neighboring Gwalior annexed Chanderi state in 1811. In 1844, the former state of Chanderi was ceded to the British, and became the Chanderi District of British India, with Lalitpur town as the district headquarters. The British lost the district in the Indian Rebellion of 1857, and it was not reconquered until late 1858. In 1861, the portion of the district west of the Betwa, including Chanderi, was returned to Gwalior, and the remainder was renamed Lalitpur District. Lalitpur District was made part of Jhansi District from 1891 to 1974. Carved out as a district in the year 1974 Lalitpur is really not only the heartland but also heart shaped district of Bundelkhand Region. It is joined to Jhansi District of Uttar Pradesh by a narrow corridor to the northeast, but is otherwise almost completely surrounded by Madhya Pradesh state; to the east lays Tikamgarh District, to the south Sagar District, and to the west Ashoknagar and Shivpuri districts.

Lalitpur, Jalaun, and Jhansi districts form Jhansi Division. Jhansi Division is one of 17 divisions of Uttar Pradesh state in northern India. It includes Jhansi, Jalaun, and Lalitpur districts. The city of Jhansi is the administrative center. The division is part of the historic Bundelkhand region, which includes a portion of southern Uttar Pradesh and extends into neighboring Madhya Pradesh state. Jhansi is one of oldest division of Indian Railways.

1.1 Location & Geographical Area.

The Lalitpur district is located at Latitude 24°11' and 25°14' (North) & Longitude 78°10' and 79°0' (East). The geographical area of the district is 5,039 sq. km. Lalitpur district is bounded by Jhansi district of UP in the north, Sagar in the south, Tikamgarh and Chhatarpur districts in the east and Shivpuri and Guna districts of Madhya Pradesh in the west. Betwa River forms the northern and western boundary of the district and Jamni River, a tributary of the Betwa, forms the eastern boundary, Dhasan River forms the district's southeastern boundary and the southeastern portion of the district lies within its watershed.

1.2 Topography

The area is generally rocky. The highest ground is in the extreme south with scraps of the Vindhyan plateau, running from the betwa in south-easterly direction and gradually breaking up into a confined mass of hills, parts of which approach a height of 650 m above mean sea level. The north of the scrap, undulating plain of black soil interrupted with scattered hills and scoured by numerous drainage channels, stretches north beyond the town of Lalitpur and gradually becomes rockier. Low red hills of granitite rock then appear with long ridges running from south- west to north- west.

Most of the area is being drained by river Jamni and its tributaries which form its eastern boundary, separating it from Tikamgarh district. River betwa forms the western and northern boundary and drains the western part of the district. The south eastern part is partly drained by Dhasan River. In general the slope is towards the north.

The hills in the south generally occur in small groups or in continuous narrow chain running parallel to each other from north-east to south-west, the ridges being mostly bare and sharp. The slopes are still comparatively more covered with scrub jungles.

The plateau is intersected by wide valleys particularly in the south west; and the entire tract, once covered with vegetation, looks barren these day. Mining has affected the whole area considerably.

From the base of the plateau to the town of Lalitpur there stretches a black soil plain which is dissected by a number of seasonal rivulets and is characterized by an undulating topography. The principal rivers which traverse the area are the Shahzad, the Saznam and the Jamni.

There is an uneven red soil tract marked by the existence of numerous bare or rocky hills dotted with scrub up to the northern part of Lalitpur and Mehroni tehsils. It is also traversed by long quartz reefs and diversified by lines of rocky hills.

1.3 Availability of Minerals.

There are many patches of hills in district Lalitpur, like concrete stone and granite stone. These are used for construction of building etc.;

During course of the meeting with the entrepreneurs it was found that the power failure in Lalitpur is a major constraint in growth of industries. Availability of technology and skilled man power is also is problem. The awareness of Government Schemes is also very much required among the entrepreneurs.
