Industrial Profile of Gonda District

1. General Characteristics of the District:

Gonda is one of the districts of Uttar Pradesh; India. Gonda town is district headquarters and also the administrative centre for the Devipatan Division. It has 2 lok sabha seats and 7 assembly areas. Rivers have played a significant role in the development of Gonda. Ghaghara is the main river flowing through the district, formed from the united waters of the Kauriala, Saryu, and Chauka & other rivers which drain the submontane tract to the west. It enters the district in the extreme west and flows along the southern borders. Within its wide bed it rolls from one side to the other, changing its channel almost every year. The land along the river is always liable to be cut away during the rains and for this reason the area of the district is liable to annual variations. Saryu is the second most important river, rising in the Bahraich district, and joining the Ghaghara in Gonda. The Kuwano River flows along the northern border, with the Bisuha, a small stream of a similar character. The Manwar, Chandai and Terhi rivers are little more than streams.

There are several important lakes in the district, including the Banki, Kodar, Aranga, and Parwati & Pathri.

1.1 Location & Geographical Area.

With a geographical area of 4003 sq. km, Gonda is bound by Shravasti district to the north, Balrampur and Sidharthnagar district to the north east, Basti district to the east, Faizabad to the south, Barabanki to the south west and Bahraich to the northwest. The district lies between 26° 47' and 27° 20' north latitude and 81° 30' and 82° 46' east longitude. Gonda has three seasons: Summer (Mar-Jun), rainy (Jul-Oct) and winter (Nov-Feb). The average summer temperature is nearly 34 °C. A hot wind named Loo blows in May and in early June. During the rainy season, rains take place up to September. Average Rainfall in the district is 1152mm.

1.2 Topography:

The holy rivers Saryu and Ghaghra pass through the district. The soils of the district are composed of the fluvial deposits of these two rivers. The entire district falling in sai sub basin of Ganga basin represents flat topography.

1.2 Availability of Minerals.

This district is Poor in Availability of Minerals. Though few minor minerals like sand & Kankar are found, these are used to construct houses and buildings in Gonda.

1.3 FOREST:

The district has 12120.09 hectares of total forest cover which is 3% of Total Area of District. Trees like teak, shesham, saal & etc are found.

1.4 Administrative set up

Gonda is the district headquarters and administrative centre for the Devipatan division. It has 4 tehsils: gonda, mankapur, coloneganjand tarabganj. It has 16 blocks.

3.6 Growth Trend

Gonda is famous for it’s Agro based Industry which always shows positive grwoth .It has four sugar mills situated in Datauli ,Babhnaan,Maizapur and Kastuva .The grwoth of these units is satisfactory. Indian Telecom Industry is situated in Mankapur which is famous for his Electronic Swithing System. This PSU has been running in to rough weather since the past decade. However the situation has improved and the unit has shown increasing growth trend for the last 3 years.

3.7 Vendorisation / Ancillarisation of the Industry

1. The supply of items in Indian Telecom Industry, Mankapur is mainly from outside gonda. There is good scope for supply of part, components and other consumable items by the micro and small enterprises.
2. Other large scale industries have in house facility for repair, maintenance and general fabrication.
3. The Diesel Locomotive Shed of Indian Railways has various vendors from others part of country. Hence there are good prospects for local SMEs to supply goods and services to the unit.
