1. General Characteristics of the District

Firozpur district is one of the important historical districts of the Punjab. The name Firozpur obviously means the town of Firoz. Probably the founder was Firoz Shah Tughlaq (A.D.) 1351-88), as the place must always have occupied an important position on the line of communication between Delhi and Lahore. Another tradition, however, ascribes its foundation to one of the Bhatti chief named Firoz Khan, in the middle of the sixteen century.

The district came into being on the annexation of Firozpur by the British in 1836. As a result of the First Anglo-Sikh War, 1845-46, the ilaqas of Khair Mudki, etc. and certain other Lahore territories, east of the Satluj, were added to it. When the Bathinda District (now called Bathinda Kalan in the Faridkot District) was broken up in 1847, some of its parts were added to the Firozpur District. The next addition comprised portions of the ilaqas of Muktsar and Kot Kapura in 1852. In 1856, the estates of the deposed Nawab of Mamdot were annexed. In 1958, village of Sibian was taken back from the Faridkot State. On the partition of the Sirsa District in 1884, its western half was included in the Firozpur District. In 1959, the Nathana Sub Tehsil (comprising 37 villages) of the Firozpur Tehsil was transferred to the Bathinda District. On the exchange of enclaves between India and Pakistan on 17 January 1961, following an agreement between the Government of India and the Government of Pakistan on 11 January 1960, certain areas in the vicinity of the Suleimanki Headworks in the Fazilka Tehsil were transferred to Pakistan in exchange of the areas near the Hussaniwala Headworks. These areas were added to the Firozpur Tehsil.

1.1 Location & Geographical Area

The Firozpur District lies between latitude 29°-55' and 31°-09' and between longitude 73°-53' and 75°-24'. Before 15 August 1973, this district was the southernmost of the seven districts of the Jalandhar Division of the Punjab State. On that date, the new Firozpur Division was formed and the Firozpur District was included in it. The boundary of the present Firozpur District on the east runs along the Faridkot District. On the north-east, the River Satluj generally separates it from the Jalandhar and Kapurthala districts. The united stream of the Satluj and the Beas generally separates it from the Amritsar District in the north-west, and farther down from the Pakistan, with the exception of some areas on each side of the river.

District comprises there tehils/subdivisions, viz. Firozpur in the middle, Zira on the east, Fazilka on the south-west. All important places in the District are connected by rail or road.

Almost 11 km from the Hussainiwala border on the west and 121 km from Ludhiana in the east lies the City of Firozpur, the headquarter s of the District adm inistration. By road, it is 116 km from Amritsar, 130 km from Jalandhar, 122 km from Ludhiana, 103 km from Bathinda (via Kot Kapura), and 86 km from Fazilka. The city lies on the Firozpur Cantonment—Ludhiana Branch Line of the Northern Railway.

1.2 Topography

Physiographically, the Firozpur District constitutes a part of the Punjab plain, which is largely flat and featureless and is formed of Pleistocene and Sub-recent alluvial deposits of the Indo-Gangetic system. Wind act has also played a part in shaping the relief of the District, located as it is in the vicinity of the Rajasthan Desert. That is why the alluvial surface of the District is strewn with sand-dunes in some parts.

The general elevation of the District ranges from 230 meters in the north-east to about 175 meters in the south-west, giving a north-east- to south-west gradient of one meter in 4km . Though the physiography of the District is apparently a homogeneous plain, in general, it displays significant variations, if examined at local levels. The following three terrain units can be identified:

- (i) The floodplain of the Satluj
- (ii) The sand-dune-infested tract
- (iii) The upland plain.

1.3 Availability of Minerals

The area forms a part of Indo-Gangetic alluvium. It is practically flat except for occurrence of small scattered sand-dunes. The geological formations identified in the area are : sandy clay with saltpetre encrustations at places, clay with sporadic sandy nodules, coarse sand, a water-bearing sand horizon, and impervious clay. The formations which have been encountered from a bore-hole drilled for oil, are the middle and upper Shiwaliks (between 195 and 700 metres).

Except saltpetre, other mineral occurrences in the Firozpur District are rather rare. The seepage of natural gas and the occurrences of groundwater have also been reported from this area.

Natural Gas --- The seepage of natural gas has been reported from Zira. The details of the seepage are not known.

Saltpetre. ---Saltpetre is essentially a nitrate of potassium and sodium, with minor amounts of chloride, sulphate and carbonate radicals. It occurs as a thin, white encrustation on the surface. The efflorescence appears during the hot months, viz. May and June and even during July in the absence of adequate rains.

Firozpur is an important saltpetre-producing district of the Punjab. A majority of the occurrences are confined to the deserted villages lying between the Satluj River and the Firozpur-Fazilka road.

1.4 Forest

An area of 105 sq. km. is covered under reserved, protected, private and unclassified forests, which is 4.78% of the total area of the district and 0.21% of total area of Punjab. It shows that the district is lacking in forest resource. The main species of plants in district Firozpur are Eucalyptus, Shisham, Kikar and Poplar etc.

1.5 Administrative set up

For administrative purpose, the district has been divided into 3 Tehsils namely Firozpur, Zira and Guru Harsahai. There are 3 Sub Tehsils namely Talwandi Bhai, Mamdot and Makhu and 6 blocks namely Firozpur, Ghal Khurd, Zira, Guru Harsahai Mamdot and Makhu. There are 966 inhabited villages and 1125 panchayats.
